

Are you kept awake at night by missing contracts?

A lack of access to contracts and no visibility or insight into what is in them can make achieving business objectives a real challenge.

In-house counsel strategic objectives include:

- uncovering and mitigating risk in the organisation
- creating a team and processes which both pro-actively align with and rapidly react to regulatory change
- unlocking value and preventing revenue leakage in contracts
- improving efficiency
- being 'data led' in decision making

In recent years, events like Covid and regulatory changes around data privacy have accelerated the need for in-house legal teams to have a better handle on their contract estate.

The key question

How can a stretched in-house team find the resource and time to collate their contracts and transform them into a searchable and functional digital repository?

Our solution

- 1 Our contract experts and paralegals are embedded within your business to perform a strategic contract amnesty
- 2 Utilising the power of artificial intelligence, blended with a layer of human review, we extract key insights from each contract, including end dates, auto-renewal, force majeure, governing law etc.
- 3 We create a digital contract repository containing all of the documents and extracted insights, complete with user-friendly dashboards, workflow and notifications

Immediate & long-term benefits

Any contract can be accessed in a matter of seconds through simple search and filtering

Dashboards can provide valuable insights into the contract estate

Custom searches and filters can easily be performed e.g. show me all contracts expiring in the next 6 months or contracts subject to the governing laws of X country

When future regulatory changes happen - contracts are all in one place and additional AI models can be built/investigations done for quick remediation